Dear Hiring Manager,

General Motors recently posted on their jobs page for their Software Engineer role. I am confident that I would be a perfect fit for this position, as I am looking to further progress as a developer. My experience and abilities match many of your requirements, and I am willing to prove my ability to learn the remainder. I have attached my resume for your consideration.

My background and education combined make me a unique candidate. I have spent the last year with one of the largest mortgage lenders in the country, and I have assumed many roles there, including most engineering and troubleshooting functions that are vital to the business. I have mentored junior developers, as well as quality engineers, and assisted with technical support for deployments. I am proficient in Object Oriented Programming, relational databases, and agile methodology. My additional experience is explained in my resume.

I have strong communication skills, demonstrated by the lasting relationships I have built over my past five years in Information Technology. I have learned the value of cooperation with clients and colleagues alike. I am excellent at solving problems and work well under pressure.

I would be grateful for a chance to meet with you to discuss my interest in working at General Motors. The inventive, future-oriented nature of your work culture is an environment I could see myself thriving in. I possess a strong desire to build a career within your company and learn more about the successful operation of your automotive production.

I thank you for your time and look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Edward Abrams
